FINAL DISPOSITION OF GRIFFEY'S HEARING THEN.

REMARKS OF THE COURT

Child to be in the Custody of Mrs. Scott Until That Time, When it is Believed Father Will Get It

Final disposition of the hearing on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed by John T. Griffey for the possession of his two-months old daughter was set over until August 3, by Judge W. C. Ellison this morning. At that time, the respondent, Mrs. Mary Scott, is granted the privilege of introducing new testimony relating to any violent treatment of Mrs. Griffey toward his wife, if any, by eye witnesses, and she shall serve the relator, Mr. Griffey, with the names of any new witnesses and with a copy of the testimony five days before the hearing comes up.

The care and custody of the child in the meantime is left to the grandmother of the child, Mrs. Scott, but Mr. Griffey will get the child at that time, unless some new testimony is introduced tending to prove mistreatment or that he be an unfit person to have the custody of the child.

The following are the remarks as made by the court this morning as taken down by Court Stenographer A. A. Brewer.

"If I should consult alone my personal opinion as to what is the best for the welfare of this child's future and had the power officially to follow my inclination, I would award the custody of it to Mrs. Scott, the grandmother. The other grandmother, according to the evidence, is undoubtedly a good, worthy woman and her home surroundings are pure and clean, but she is somewhat frailer than Mrs. Scott, has others to care for and cannot devote the same time and attention to the infant that Mrs. Scott can. And besides this, this new born infant is the only living descendant of Mrs. Scott. Her husband and daughter, her only child, are dead. She is a noble, good, Christian woman, and no doubt would bring up the child with the same solicitude and motherly care that would be bestowed by the most affectionate mother, and I do not believe that anybody connected with the case on either side, excepting alone the father of the child, has a different opinion. Certainly the grandmother, Mrs. Griffey, has not for she testified substantially to that fact."

"Under the law, however, such considerations as these have little or no weight in passing on the single issue presented. Here, Mrs. Scott, the grandmother, has the custody of a child a little less than two months old. She refuses to give it to the

"When to Lock the Stable" Just From the Press.

A humorous novel, written by and illustrated by former Missouri state University students, has just come from the press. It is "When to Lock the Stable," by Homer Croy, humorist, who is a native of Maryville and who is now traveling around the world for Leslie's Weekly. The illustrations are by Monte Crews, of Fayette, magazine illustrator who will leave in June to return to his work in New York.

The book is about Missouri life and the scene is laid in Maryville. The drawings were made at Fayette and the models are true Missourians. Mrs. Monte Crews, a young woman, is the model for all of the women in the illustrations by her husband. Of course where an old woman must appear in the picture the facial lines are changed to make her old. Mrs. Crews' brother is the model for the man in many places. At one time Mrs. Crews is an old maid beating a man and at another is a young woman being rescued from a burning building.

The twelve drawings by Crews, who has been doing work for the American and the Red Book Magazines, were made this past winter. Crews, as will be remembered, was discovered here by Croy of the Savitar some years ago. After that Crews illustrated several Savitars even when he was in Chicago and New York. Later Crews and Croy were together in New York City where the artist had his studio. This year both a Croy yarn and a Crews' illustration were seen in the 1914 Savitar.

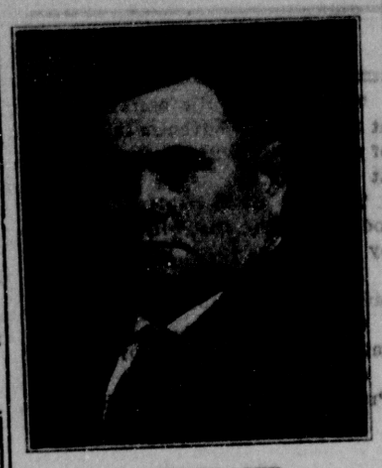
Alex Fraser For Recorder



ALEX FRASER

In announcing for Recorder, I wish to state that nearly all of my life has been spent in this county, coming to Maryville when four years of age, forty-four years ago. Look me up.

That I am of a family of Democrats and not one of us ever asked the people for any office before.

I spent fourteen years of my life actively engaged in farming. Five years ago, I came to Maryville to school my children and since then I have been employed as salesman in this county by the J. R. Watkins Medical company. My business gives me an extensive acquaintance on the East side. I have not an unkind word, neither a word of criticism for any of my opponents. I am just working for my own interests. I feel that I am qualified to give to the Recorder's office the best administration possible.

If nominated and elected, not a voter of this county will ever regret having supported me, for my administration will be clean and fair and just to all. Upon these facts, I earnestly solicit and will greatly appreciate your support on August 4.

Yours truly,
(Adv.) ALEX FRASER.

COMMITS SUICIDE

Bert Thomas, aged 38, a single man, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid some time Wednesday afternoon, on the public road about a mile north of his old home farm near Leighton. The body was found in the road shortly after 4 o'clock by school children and Dr. Carpenter, of Pella, who was called immediately, stated that the man had been dead for two or three hours. An inquest was held by Fred DeCook, justice of the peace in Black Oak township, and the verdict of suicide returned. A whiskey bottle was all that was found near the body but carbolic acid had unquestionably been the cause of death. Mrs. Laura Thomas, of Pella, is the man's mother and he has other relatives living in and around Leighton and Pella.

A note found in the pockets of the dead man read as follows: "Dear ma, and the rest of you: My last message —Don't worry about me when I am gone. It is only a question of time until the neuralgia will kill me by inches, and I am not afraid to die. So I think this the proper thing for me to do. For my own self I would rather be in my grave than suffer the way I have the past year. I want you to write Frank McClain and tell him I died the way I lived. His address is Maryville, Mo."

The body was taken to the man's home in Pella, and report of the inquest was made to Coroner Cheesman at Oskaloosa this morning by Mr. DeCook. The deceased had been in Missouri for the past several months but returned to Pella a few days ago. He had come over to his old home at Leighton for the day and Mr. DeCook states that he talked to him for a half hour yesterday morning. He had always seemed in perfect health and very few people were aware that he suffered from neuralgia. The deceased man is the fifth of the family to die voluntarily or as the result of an accident. His father was killed several years ago in a runaway.

Annual Dinner Postponed

Lukewarm water—Fels-Naptha Soap—thirty minutes of soaking—then comes your part of the weekly washing. Your part the way you wash now is the worst part, isn't it? With Fels-Naptha Soap your part becomes the best. You rub the clothes lightly (it takes half the time and quarter the effort it used to take), rinse them thoroughly and hang them out. Your washing is done. If you started early, you have time to rest before you have to start to get your noonday meal.

To do anything that used to take soap and boiling water, use Fels-Naptha Soap and cool or lukewarm water. It does your work better, it takes less time, it uses up less of your strength.

Mrs. Wretched—"Well, Charlie may think he has the hardest work, and I don't suppose it is any fun working in the foundry. But I don't know as it's any harder than standing over steaming tubs in a hot kitchen, working yourself to death to get his greasy overalls clean!"

Anty Drudge—"The way you wash will kill you if you keep on. No woman can stand it. The thing to do is to learn to save yourself, and the way to save yourself is to do all kinds of cleaning with Fels-Naptha Soap and lukewarm water. Put Charlie's greasy things to soak with this cake of soap I have in my satchel and sit down while I tell you something that all women should know about washing with Fels-Naptha Soap."

father and he is, in this proceeding, endeavoring to regain the control of it. At common law the father has the paramount right to the custody of his child as against any other person in the world. This right springs necessarily from and is incident to the father's duty to provide for the maintenance, protection and education of his child and it is a right that can be forfeited only by his gross depravity and misconduct. The law gives him the right to the custody of the child, even against the mother, but as between the mother and father the courts are allowed to deprive the father of the custody of the child and give it to the mother on the grounds that would not at all justify the taking of the child from the father and giving it to the grandmother. As between the father and grandmother, or anyone else except the mother, nothing will deprive the father of his superior claim to the possession of the child or forfeit his right to its custody short of moral turpitude rendering him wholly unfit to be its mentor and guide. If he were an habitual drunkard or a common thief without home, or if he had heartlessly abandoned the child and desired to regain its possession for no good purpose, or if he had exposed it to cruelty and gross treatment so as to endanger its life or health, or if the home in which he proposed to rear it and in which only he could bring it up was an immoral and improper environment for the child, the law authorizes a court to take the possession of it from him; but it has more than a hundred times been decided that merely a cold, reserved or unsympathetic father, or the drink habit which stops short of habitual drunkenness, or parsimonious conduct and a quarrelsome, mean nature, or mean surroundings, or coarseness in habits, and tastes will not justify a court in interfering with the father's common law right to the possession of his child. The fact that before the mother's death the parents did not get along well together, or the fact that he mistreated her and abused her to such an extent as would have warranted her in getting a divorce would not justify a court in awarding the custody of the child to some third person after the mother's death. It does not necessarily follow in the eye of the law, that because a husband is cruel to his wife he forfeits all claim to the possession of his child after the mother's death. It is conceded by counsel that the verbal agreement on the part of the father in this case to let Mrs. Scott have the child is not binding; it is in law absolutely void. He could not, if he would, absolve himself from the duty of rearing and mainatining the child and only by proceedings in writing and in conformity with the statute can he surrender his control of the child beyond the power of recall.

"John Griffey, the father, is about twenty-four years old. As many as twenty or twenty-five witnesses from among the very best people in this county have testified that he was a young man free from every form of vice. According to them he does not chew, nor smoke, nor drink, nor gamble, nor use profane language as a habit. The testimony was without contradiction, that he was an industrious young man. Most all of the thirty or forty witnesses who testified in the case on the subject stated that his conduct in the presence of women was respecful and considerate. Mrs. Scott spoke of his using profanity at the dinner table. I believe she was the only witness who went that far, but I further believe that she spoke what she thought the truth when she made the statement. Even if it were so the law would not authorize me, for that reason to forfeit his right to the custody of the child. As despicable and unpardonable as such a practice is, it falls short of furnishing grounds for depriving him of the care and custody of his own flesh and blood. If young Mr. Griffey mistreated his wife that mistreatment was not of such character as to make it necessarily follow that he was unfit morally to retain the control of his infant child after the death of its mother. Practically the only evidence we have of the alleged mistreatment of his wife is what is termed "hearsay" testimony—that is to say, testimony of witnesses who said that they had heard his wife say that he had abused her. Not more than two witnesses, if that many, testified that they ever saw and misconduct on his part in his relations to his wife. They speak of his brutality in the treatment of his stock, but I do not understand them to go any further than that in their statements as to what they, themselves, actually saw or heard. In deciding the case I cannot make use of hearsay evidence; the law forbids it. The law prohibits us from condemning any person on evidence of what somebody head some other person say. Rumor or hearsay is not evidence of the truth of such rumor or hearsay. In rare instances rumor and hearsay are admissible in evidence for purposes that have no application in this case, but when they are admitted in evidence they are not to be considered as any proof whatever of the truth of the contents of such rumor or hearsay.

"I regret that this controversy has arisen. I hope young Mr. Griffey may be persuaded that the best service he can render his child is to give it over to the tender care of its grandmother, Mrs. Scott, who has left in life not much else than this little granddaughter."

SHIPS RETURN TO PUERTO MEXICO

Huerta Abandons Idea of Blockading Tampico.

CRISIS HAS BEEN AVERTED

Washington Officials Express Satisfaction—Course of Steamer Antilla May Be Diverted and Munitions of War Landed at Another Port.

Washington, June 9.—Rear Admiral Badger cabled the navy department that the two Mexican federal gunboats Bravo and Zaragosa left Tampico for Puerto Mexico.

General Huerta's order suspending the order to blockade Tampico against the delivery of ammunition by the steamer Antilla to the Constitutionalists dispelled apprehension over a new crisis between the United States and the Huerta government, which threatened mediation of Mexican affairs.

Although Washington officials expressed satisfaction over Huerta's action, it was persistently suggested outside of official circles that the blockade had been suspended only conditionally as a result of conferences between the South American mediators and the Mexican and American delegates at Niagara Falls and that the Antilla's cargo of arms might not be delivered at Tampico at this time. It was said the Antilla might be diverted in its course through an agreement with the officials of the Ward line, its owners, an American corporation.

From no official source here could confirmation be procured of reports that Huerta had an understanding with the mediators or the United States which would assure him that the Antilla's cargo would not be delivered. Representatives of the Constitutional government in Washington were inclined to the belief that the ammunition would be landed at Tampico, but divulged no direct information on which to base such an opinion. The Antilla is due to arrive off Tampico tomorrow.

"TIZ" FIXED MY SORE, TIRED FEET

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning feet of yours in a "TIZ" bath. Your toes will wiggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "TIZ" bath.

When your feet feel all tired out—just try "TIZ." It's grand—Your feet will dance with joy; no more pain in corns, callouses and bunions. There's nothing like "TIZ." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" at any drug or department store, don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel. You can wear shoes a size smaller if you desire.

THOSE NEW BRIDGES

County is Building Under Supervision of County Highway Engineer John Clary.

Nodaway county is erecting some of the finest bridges in the state at present. They are not the largest, nor the mose expensive but they are the best that can be built for the money. One has been built at the big slough 4 miles east of town and one on Clear Creek 10 miles north of Maryville on the Nodaway-Union township line. Several more are to be put in.

The bridge on the big slough east of Maryville is built of concrete, having a concrete foundation and a concrete floor.

One new feature of the bridges which is being tried out at the big slough is the spillway which prevents the banks caving in and stopping up the drainage. Several more of the same kind of bridges will be construct ed in the county as soon as possible.

SET OVER TO AUG. 3

FINAL DISPOSITION OF GRIFFEY'S HEARING THEN.

REMARKS OF THE COURT

Child to be in the Custody of Mrs. Scott Until That Time, When it is Believed Father Will Get it

Final disposition of the hearing on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed by John T. Griffey for the possession of his two-months old daughter was set over until August 3, by Judge W. C. Ellison this morning. At that time, the respondent, Mrs. Mary Scott, is granted the privilege of introducing new testimony relating to any violent treatment of Mrs. Griffey toward his wife, if any, by eye witnesses, and she shall serve the relator, Mr. Griffey, with the names of any new witnesses and with a copy of the testimony five days before the hearing comes up.

The care and custody of the child in the meantime is left to the grandmother of the child, Mrs. Scott, but Mr. Griffey will get the child at that time, unless some new testimony is introduced tending to prove mistreatment or that he be an unfit person to have the custody of the child.

The following are the remarks as made by the court this morning as taken down by Court Stenographer A. A. Brewer.

"If I should consult alone my personal opinion as to what is the best for the welfare of this child's future and had the power officially to follow my inclination, I would award the custody of it to Mrs. Scott, the grandmother. The other grandmother, according to the evidence, is undoubtedly a good, worthy woman and her home surroundings are pure and clean, but she is somewhat frailer than Mrs. Scott, has others to care for and cannot devote the same time and attention to the infant that Mrs. Scott can. And besides this, this new born infant is the only living descendant of Mrs. Scott. Her husband and daughter, her only child, are dead. She is a noble, good, Christian woman, and no doubt would bring up the child with the same solicitude and motherly care that would be bestowed by the most affectionate mother, and I do not believe that anybody connected with the case on either side, excepting alone the father of the child, has a different opinion. Certainly the grandmother, Mrs. Griffey, has not for she testified substantially to that fact."

"Under the law, however, such considerations as these have little or no weight in passing on the single issue presented. Here, Mrs. Scott, the grandmother, has the custody of a child a little less than two months old. She refuses to give it to the

"When to Lock the Stable" Just From the Press.

A humorous novel, written by and illustrated by former Missouri state University students, has just come from the press. It is "When to Lock the Stable," by Homer Croy, humorist, who is a native of Maryville and who is now traveling around the world for Leslie's Weekly. The illustrations are by Monte Crews, of Fayette, magazine illustrator who will leave in June to return to his work in New York.

The book is about Missouri life and the scene is laid in Maryville. The drawings were made at Fayette and the models are true Missourians. Mrs. Monte Crews, a young woman, is the model for all of the women in the illustrations by her husband. Of course where an old woman must appear in the picture the facial lines are changed to make her old. Mrs. Crews' brother is the model for the man in many places. At one time Mrs. Crews is an old maid beating a man and at another is a young woman being rescued from a burning building.

The twelve drawings by Crews, who has been doing work for the American and the Red Book Magazines, were made this past winter. Crews, as will be remembered, was discovered here by Croy of the Savitar some years ago. After that Crews illustrated several Savitars even when he was in Chicago and New York. Later Crews and Croy were together in New York City where the artist had his studio. This year both a Croy yarn and a Crews' illustration were seen in the 1914 Savitar.

Alex Fraser For Recorder

ALEX FRASER

In announcing for Recorder, I wish to state that nearly all of my life has been spent in this county, coming to Maryville when four years of age, forty-four years ago. Look me up.

That I am of a family of Democrats and not one of us ever asked the people for any office before.

I spent fourteen years of my life actively engaged in farming. Five years ago, I came to Maryville to school my children and since then I have been employed as salesman in this county by the J. R. Watkins Medical company. My business gives me an extensive acquaintance on the East side. I have not an unkind word, neither a word of criticism for any of my opponents. I am just working for my own interests. I feel that I am qualified to give to the Recorder's office the best administration possible.

If nominated and elected, not a voter of this county will ever regret having supported me, for my administration will be clean and fair and just to all. Upon these facts, I earnestly solicit and will greatly appreciate your support on August 4.

Yours truly,

(Adv.) ALEX FRASER.

Bert Thomas, aged 38, a single man, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid some time Wednesday afternoon, on the public road about a mile north of his old home farm near Leighton. The body was found in the road shortly after 4 o'clock by school children and Dr. Carpenter, of Pella, who was called immediately, stated that the man had been dead for two or three hours. An inquest was held by Fred DeCook, justice of the peace in Black Oak township, and the verdict of suicide returned. A whiskey bottle was all that was found near the body but carbolic acid had unquestionably been the cause of death. Mrs. Laura Thomas, of Pella, is the man's mother and he has other relatives living in and around Leighton and Pella.

A note found in the pockets of the dead man read as follows: "Dear ma, and the rest of you: My last message—Don't worry about me when I am gone. It is only a question of time until the neuralgia will kill me by inches, and I am not afraid to die. So I think this the proper thing for me to do. For my own self I would rather be in my grave than suffer the way I have the past year. I want you to write Frank McClain and tell him I died the way I lived. His address is Maryville, Mo."

The body was taken to the man's home in Pella, and report of the inquest was made to Coroner Cheesman at Oskaloosa this morning by Mr. DeCook. The deceased had been in Missouri for the past several months but returned to Pella a few days ago. He had come over to his old home at Leighton for the day and Mr. DeCook states that he talked to him for a half hour yesterday morning. He had always seemed in perfect health and very few people were aware that he suffered from neuralgia. The deceased man is the fifth of the family to die voluntarily or as the result of an accident. His father was killed several years ago in a runaway.

Annual Dinner Postponed

Mrs. Wretched—"Well, Charlie may think he has the hardest work, and I don't suppose it is any fun working in the foundry. But I don't know as it's any harder than standing over steaming tubs in a hot kitchen, working yourself to death to get his greasy overalls clean!"

Anty Drudge—"The way you wash will kill you if you keep on. No woman can stand it. The thing to do is to learn to save yourself, and the way to save yourself is to do all kinds of cleaning with Fels-Naptha Soap and lukewarm water. Put Charlie's greasy things to soak with this cake of soap I have in my satchel and sit down while I tell you something that all women should know about washing with Fels-Naptha Soap."

your part of the weekly washing. Your part the way you wash now is the worst part, isn't it? With Fels-Naptha Soap your part becomes the best. You rub the clothes lightly (it takes half the time and quarter the effort it used to take), rinse them thoroughly and hang them out. Your washing is done. If you started early, you have time to rest before you have to start to get your noonday meal.

To do anything that used to take soap and boiling water, use Fels-Naptha Soap and cool or lukewarm water. It does your work better, it takes less time, it uses up less of your strength.

Follow the directions on the Red and Green Wrapper.

father and he is, in this proceeding, endeavoring to regain the control of it. At common law the father has the paramount right to the custody of his child as against any other person in the world. This right springs necessarily from and is incident to the father's duty to provide for the maintenance, protection and education of his child and it is a right that can be forfeited only by his gross depravity and misconduct. The law gives him the right to the custody of the child, even against the mother, but as between the mother and father the courts are allowed to deprive the father of the custody of the child and give it to the mother on the grounds that would not at all justify the taking of the child from the father and giving it to the grandmother. As between the father and grandmother, or anyone else except the mother, nothing will deprive the father of his superior claim to the possession of the child or forfeit his right to its custody short of moral turpitude rendering him wholly unfit to be its mentor and guide. If he were an habitual drunkard or a common thief without home, or if he had heartlessly abandoned the child and desired to regain its possession for no good purpose, or if he had exposed it to cruelty and gross treatment so as to endanger its life or health, or if the home in which he proposed to rear it and in which only he could bring it up was an immoral and improper environment for the child, the law authorizes a court to take the possession of it from him; but it has more than a hundred times been decided that merely a cold, reserved or unsympathetic father, or the drink habit which stops short of habitual drunkenness, or parsimonious conduct and a quarrelsome, mean nature, or mean surroundings, or coarseness in habits, and tastes will not justify a court in interfering with the father's common law right to the possession of his child. The fact that before the mother's death the parents did not get along well together, or the fact that he mistreated her and abused her to such an extent as would have warranted her in getting a divorce would not justify a court in awarding the custody of the child to some third person after the mother's death. It does not necessarily follow in the eye of the law, that because a husband is cruel to his wife he forfeits all claim to the possession of his child after the mother's death. It is conceded by counsel that the verbal agreement on the part of the father in this case to let Mrs. Scott have the child is not binding; it is in law absolutely void. He could not, if he would, absolve himself from the duty of rearing and mainatining the child and only by proceedings in writing and in conformity with the statute can he surrender his control of the child beyond the power of recall.

"John Griffey, the father, is about twenty-four years old. As many as twenty or twenty-five witnesses from among the very best people in this county have testified that he was a young man free from every form of vice. According to them he does not chew, nor smoke, nor drink, nor gamble, nor use profane language as a habit. The testimony was without contradiction, that he was an industrious young man. Most all of the thirty or forty witnesses who testified in the case on the subject stated that his conduct in the presence of women was respecful and considerate. Mrs. Scott spoke of his using profanity at the dinner table. I believe she was the only witness who went that far, but I further believe that she spoke what she thought the truth when she made the statement. Even if it were so the law would not authorize me, for that reason to forfeit his right to the custody of the child. As despicable and unpardonable as such a practice is, it falls short of furnishing grounds for depriving him of the care and custody of his own flesh and blood. If young Mr. Griffey mistreated his wife that mistreatment was not of such character as to make it necessarily follow that he was unfit morally to retain the control of his infant child after the death of its mother. Practically the only evidence we have of the alleged mistreatment of his wife is what is termed "hearsay" testimony—that is to say, testimony of witnesses who said that they had heard his wife say that he had abused her. Not more than two witnesses, if that many, testified that they ever saw and misconduct on his part in his relations to his wife. They speak of his brutality in the treatment of his stock, but I do not understand them to go any further than that in their statements as to what they, themselves, actually saw or heard. In deciding the case I cannot make use of hearsay evidence; the law forbids it. The law prohibits us from condemning any person on evidence of what somebody head some other person say. Rumor or hearsay is not evidence of the truth of such rumor or hearsay. In rare instances rumor and hearsay are admissible in evidence for purposes that have no application in this case, but when they are admitted in evidence they are not to be considered as any proof whatever of the truth of the contents of such rumor or hearsay.

"I regret that this controversy has arisen. I hope young Mr. Griffey may be persuaded that the best service he can render his child is to give it over to the tender care of its grandmother, Mrs. Scott, who has left in life not much else than this little granddaughter."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

SHIPS RETURN TO PUERTO MEXICO

Huerta Abandons Idea of Blockading Tampico.

CRISIS HAS BEEN AVERTED

Washington Officials Express Satisfaction—Course of Steamer Antilla May Be Diverted and Munitions of War Landed at Another Port.

Washington, June 9.—Rear Admiral Badger cabled the navy department that the two Mexican federal gunboats Bravo and Zaragosa left Tampico for Puerto Mexico.

General Huerta's order suspending the order to blockade Tampico against the delivery of ammunition by the steamer Antilla to the Constitutionalists dispelled apprehension over a new crisis between the United States and the Huerta government, which threatened mediation of Mexican affairs.

Although Washington officials expressed satisfaction over Huerta's action, it was persistently suggested outside of official circles that the blockade had been suspended only conditionally as a result of conferences between the South American mediators and the Mexican and American delegates at Niagara Falls and that the Antilla's cargo of arms might not be delivered at Tampico at this time. It was said the Antilla might be diverted in its course through an agreement with the officials of the Ward line, its owners, an American corporation.

From no official source here could confirmation be procured of reports that Huerta had an understanding with the mediators or the United States which would assure him that the Antilla's cargo would not be delivered. Representatives of the Constitutional government in Washington were inclined to the belief that the ammunition would be landed at Tampico, but divulged no direct information on which to base such an opinion. The Antilla is due to arrive off Tampico tomorrow.

"TIZ" FIXED MY SORE, TIRED FEET

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning feet of yours in a "TIZ" bath. Your toes will wiggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "TIZ" bath.

When your feet feel all tired out—just try "TIZ." It's grand—Your feet will dance with joy; no more pain in corns, callouses and bunions. There's nothing like "TIZ." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" at any drug or department store, don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel. You can wear shoes a size smaller if you desire.

THOSE NEW BRIDGES

County is Building Under Supervision of County Highway Engineer John Clary.

Nodaway county is erecting some of the finest bridges in the state at present. They are not the largest, nor the mose expensive but they are the best that can be built for the money. One has been built at the big slough 4 miles east of town and one on Clear Creek 10 miles north of Maryville on the Nodaway-Union township line. Several more are to be put in.

The bridge on the big slough east of Maryville is built of concrete, having a concrete foundation and a concrete floor.

One new feature of the bridges which is being tried out at the big slough is the spillway which prevents the banks caving in and stopping up the drainage. Several more of the same kind of bridges will be construct ed in the county as soon as possible.
